

NSW Child Sex Offender Counsellors Accreditation Scheme

The Office of the Children's Guardian administers a scheme to help you find an accredited counsellor to work with people who sexually offend against children. Information is also provided for qualified people who wish to apply for accreditation under the scheme.

Who benefits from the scheme?

- Children and young people - the counsellors in the scheme have the best interests of children and young people at heart.
- Courts - the courts know the counsellor is a recognised expert in the field.
- Clients - clients work with counsellors who have specialist skills and experience.
- Counsellors - counsellors are formally recognised for working in this highly specialised field.

How the scheme works

The NSW Child Sex Offender Counsellors Accreditation Scheme promotes the wellbeing of children and young people by establishing a public register of counsellors with the necessary knowledge and skill to work with people who sexually offend against children.

Minimum standards

Accredited professionals are required to:

- be currently working in a professional counselling capacity
- be qualified as a psychologist, social worker, psychiatrist or other relevant professional
- uphold the Australian and New Zealand Association for the Treatment of Sexual

Abusers (ANZATSA) Code of Conduct and Ethics

- be of good character
- have a minimum level of education in specific areas relating to counselling child sex offenders, and
- have a minimum level of professional experience, training and supervision.

Accreditation types and levels

There are two types of accreditation:

- professionals who work with children and adolescents who sexually harm others
- professionals who work with adults who sexually offend against children.

There are three levels of accreditation:

1. Associate
2. Clinical
3. Supervisor.

Each accreditation level has different requirements. The requirements are outlined in Application materials.

Assessment

Applications are assessed twice a year. Closing dates each year are 31 March and 30 September. There is no charge for accreditation which lasts for two years.

Applications for accreditation are assessed by the OCG accreditation panel in accordance with the standards set out in the Guidelines for Applicants.
